MERRIAM ASKS REPORT ON PLAN TO AID MINING

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 8.—Acting Governor Frank F. Merriam asked the State Mining Board today to prepare a six-point program designed to rehabilitate the mining industry, create employment, increase purchasing power, and result in a greater demand for agricultural and manufactured products.

Merriam suggested that the board members call upon mining men throughout the state to express their opinions and give their ideas based upon their own experiences.

His suggestions to the board were that they determine:

1. Whatever there should be a Department of Mineral Resources separate from the existing Department of Natural Resources.

2. Whether there is adequate mining inspection at present, and whether greater efficiency can be attained under the present Industrial Accident Commission, or separately, under a Department of Mineral Resources.

3. What are the causes for high compensation insurance premium rates in mines and how may they be reduced.

4. A plan for closer cooperation between the prospector and a Department of Mineral Resources together with the establishment of better facilities for such cooperation.

5. Whether the state mining board can act as intermediary in labor disputes in mines.

6. Make recommendations as to the construction of roads and their maintenance to provide adequate means of reaching mining regions.

"The growing importance of the mining industry, especially with respect to the necessity for increased production of gold and the assistance this industry can render toward stimulating employment, as well as increasing the demand for agricultural products and mining machinery and equipment, is recognized," Mr. Merriam told the board. "I therefore am calling upon the State Mining Board to submit its recommendations for a constructive plan for the rehabilitation of the mining industry in California."

Members of the board are State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, Errol MacBoyle, Chas. H. Segerstrom, Robert A. Kinzie and Edward M. Smith.

He came here in the early days when quite young and was known for his many kindly acts to those in trouble or distress. He has been a licensed gold buyer for some time.

Laurel Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, have received a letter from Mrs. Florence Boyle, of Oroville, State Chairman of the department of relics and roster, requesting that Laurel Parlor gather names and data about all pioneers of this section and send it into the state committee. She requested that the names, date or arrival in California, from whence they came, the method of transportation, if on a vessel, name of same, if overland, route and any other interesting information relative to their coming to California. Any person having such information about pioneers please send it to the local chapter and it will be taken care of and forwarded to the State committee.

EDUCATIONAL DIRECTOR TUBERCULOIS ASSN. WILL SPEAK HERE

Miss Woodward, Educational Director of the California Tuberculosis Association, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Woman's Civic Club on Monday evening, October 22. Miss Woodward will tell of the hopes and aims of the association and their means of carrying on—the need for the preventative work and what we can do to help.

This year the State Tuberculosis Association will take over the work of selling the stamps previously carried on by the Red Cross. The stamps will be sent to every one on the great register, this making a county wide campaign and will not be given to the school children to sell as previously done. Seventy-five per cent of the proceeds received from the county sale of stamps will be used in this county for child health welfare. Miss Greeley, of the Grass Valley high school staff, who is secretary of the county committee of the association, will have charge of the distribution of the stamps.

BANK OF AMER. MAKES THOUSAND HOUSING LOANS

More than a thousand loans to modernize homes, business properties and farm buildings have been made by Bank of America in cooperation with the Federal Housing Administration, Will F. Morrish, President, announced today.

"The number of loans already made indicates clearly that a demand exists for this type of credit," said Morrish and the volume of applications is on the increase throughout the entire state.

"To date, Bank of America has loaned $413,747 to carry out 1,073 individual modernization projects under the terms of the National Housing Act. At least as many applications are pending and the loans will be completed as soon as estimates of construction costs are supplied by the borrowers.

"In the San Francisco bay district men can already be seen at work as result of the operations of the Housing Program. The scaffoldings you see on buildings undergoing repairs and improvements today are signs pointing the way out of depression."

Some 250 loans in the total amount of $95,938 have been made in San Francisco, Alameda, Marin and San Mateo counties for improvement of homes and other buildings, Morrish stated.

"So far, the principal demand for housing loans has come from the state's metropolitan areas," said Morrish. "This is probably because of the fact that farmers have not yet learned that this type of loan can be made to improve farm buildings and that their payments need not be made in monthly installments, but can be scheduled for payment when their crop money is received."

MINOLA JEAN MARSH CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Little Minola Jean Marsh celebrated her ninth birthday with a very gay party at her home on Prospect street, on Sunday. Twenty-one children played games with Minola all afternoon and it was a happy group of children that sat down to the birthday refreshments, late in the afternoon. The decorations were in the Hallowe'en motif. A large birthday cake decorated with a frosting jack-o-lantern centered the table. There was much gaity when the 21 youngsters tried to blow out the nine yellow candles. Prizes were won by Doris Garwood for pinning the tail on the donkey; Jimmie Hamilton in the apple bobbing contest and Evelyn Lotz and Edwin Berger for finding the most peanuts in the big hunt. Helping the little hostess celebrate were:

PHONE RELICS ARE EXHIBITED

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be "red-letter" days on your calander, this week, if Telephone company employees have their way. They plan to hold open house in the exchange headquarters, at 318 Broad street, and demonstrate how the equipment is operated in handling nearly 2,000 calls a day, or 644,474 during the year.

"Nevada City people should be interested to know that they make ten times as many telephone calls per capita as do the people of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and nine times as many as those of Germany," said Miss K. Kinkead, the resident manager of the company.

Miss Kinkead, speaking for local telephone employees, has invited everyone to attend the three-day public reception. Visiting hours will be from 1 to 8:30 p. m.

Special exhibits, listed as open-house attractions, include a teletypewriter which is actually connected to send type messages over long-distance telephone wires, an artificial "voice-box," telephones which may be tuned for volume, a bar of the "hardest" steel, which mysteriously floats in the air, and replicas of the first telephone, and exchange switchboard in the world.

Telephone men and women anticipate that the device which rings Nevada City's telephone bells will attract its full share of attention. "We call this machine an 'interruptor,'" said Miss Kinkead. "However, it interrupts nothing but the direct current from the storage battery, and thus makes the bells ring. The machine can ring 100 bells as easily as one. It is interesting to see how its operation is controlled."

All visitors will be conducted through the telephone office by telephone men and women, who are to be hosts and hostesses for the occasion. Miss K. Kinkead estimated that a half-hour will be required to see the equipment and special exhibits.

Telephone displays are also planned for several downtown store windows.

EXTRALATERAL GOLD MINING RIGHTS ARE INVOLVED IN SUIT

SAN FRANCISCO, October 6.—In the first suit of importance here in years involving extralateral gold mining rights, the Empire Star Mining Ltd., on October 5 sought an injunction against two other companies operating at Grass Valley.

The Empire company charged the Grass Valley Bullion Mines, Inc., and the Idaho-Maryland Mines Company have tunneled under its properties and are extracting valuable gold ore, for which "appropriate" damages are asked.

TRUSTEES ARE INCLUDED

E. J. DeSabla and L. J. DeSabla also are named defendants as trustees in a lease of their Grass Valley properties to the Bullion company. The Empire Star Mines operates the Empire, North Star and Pennsylvania mines.

Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan ordered the defendants to appear on October 22, and show cause why an injunction should not be issued.

YELLOW JACKETS SHOW STEADY IMPROVEMENT

Coach Bev Barron's Yellow Jackets lost by the narrow margin of 6-0 to Grant Union high school, at the game at Cashin's Field Saturday. The game was played on a muddy and rain-swept field, the boys resembled a squad of chocolate soldiers as they came off the field. The Yellow Jackets gave the Grant boys a hard fight for their victory, and all pronounced the game a very even one.

Those who started the game were as follows: Franklin Tuttle, Mervin Doolittle, Carl Tobiassen, Ray Steger, Kenneth Younkin, Don Jones, Red Ralls, Jim Stephens, Ray Wilde, Morris Roberts, and Albert Pratti. Curtis Clark, Bill Bennett, Dick Bennett, Bill Sharpe, and Dick Marriott were sent in as substitutes. Dick Stevens was unable to play due to an injured knee received in th Biggs game last week. WATCH OUT FOR PEDESTRIANS!

Here is something that every automobile driver should keep constantly in mind: The pedestrian must always be given the right of way. He is, by comparison with the motorist, in a precarious position—when a crisis occurs, his only chance to escape unharmed often depends upon the driver of the car which is in danger of running him down.

The pedestrian accident toll constitutes one of the worst phases of our disgraceful automobile accident record. In 1933, 37.14 per cent of all motor accidents involved pedestrians. These accounted for 30.83 per cent of all injuries, and 44.95 per cent of all deaths—showing that when a pedestrian is in an accident, the chance of his being killed is greater than in any other type of automobile mishap.

This year the automobile fatality record is rising over the 1933 level, and if the present trend continues the death toll will reach a new high. And, as usual, the pedestrian continues to get the worst of it. There is a legion of motorists who believe that as soon as the "go" light flares they are entitled to dash across an intersection, whether or not people on foot are still in it. It is an interesting commentary on this that the courts have held that once a pedestrian has stepped into a street under traffic light protection, he is entitled to a safe passage across, whether or not the light changes.

Every auomobile driver should regard pedestrians as being his personal responsibility. You may save a fraction of a second by dashing across intersections thronged with pedestrians—but is it worth it in view of the fact that that "saving" may cost a life?

NEW DEAL CRITICISMS

Boiled down, the main gist of all criticism and opposition to New Deal policies are that they are designed to transform methods of business and to impose upon the American people entirely novel conceptions of individual and property rights.

To further becloud the issue a certain school of the opposition are making great 'to do' regarding so-called collectivism. For whoever will study the trend of events it seems impossible to percieve how present policies can have as their ultimate goal anything resembling collectivism. Since its inception, President Roosevelt and his New Deal have at all times made public through press and radio that the New Deal was and is an effort to evolve and coordinate an economic system which shall be run by private enterprises under Government supervision. A better description than collectivism for such a system is either 'organized individualism' or as General Johnson so aptly phrased it 'reconstructed individualism'.

Upon one score however, much honest criticism has been launched against the Government. This is in the matter of its monetary policy; that phase of the policy that has to do with the sanctity of contract. By arbitrarily reducing the gold content of the dollar; thereby invalidating its contract to pay its debts in gold of the same weight and fineness which it had previously contracted to do the old question of whether state is uperior to contract arises. Every one must believe in the sanctity of contract. Upon such sanctity practically all business is based. It must be borne in mind however, that at times circumstances make the fullfillment of contract impossible; for the fullfillment could be so disastrous as to be suicidal. Such was the situation that faced the New Deal. During the depression, the average of commodity prices fell 37 per cent. The average of farm commodity prices fell to a far greater extent. Our system of exchange depending as it does upon credit, broke down under this unprecedented drop in prices with the result that practically all private contracts were invalid because of the utter impossibility of their fullfillment. The only alternative was that Government, to prevent a complete break-down in the economic system and to prevent very likely social disorder; by violating its own contract made it possible that private contracts might be maintained inviolate. It is a debatable question as to whether state is superior to contract but there is no question that the greater part of the population believe that in this case the end justified the means.

ROBBERS' ROOST

Zane Grey

Copyright.—WNU Service.

She rode on slowly down the ridge without looking to right or left. Her gaze appeared to be lowered.

The ranch-house came in sight. Miss Herrick saw it and halted a moment, to let Jim catch up with her.

"Can you be gentleman enough to tell me the truth?" she asked.

"I have not lied to you," replied Jim.

"That—that first time you kissed me—was it honestly unpremeditated?"

"Miss Herrick, I don't know what to swear by. But, yes, I have. My mother! I swear by memory of her that I never dreamed of insulting you—I looked up. There your face was close. Your lips red! And I kissed them."

They went on for perhaps ten paces, as far as the road, before she spoke again. "I believe you," she said, without a tremor of the rich, low voice, though it was evident her emotion was deeply stirred. "Your action was inexcusable, unforgivable. But I should not have struck you with the whip. . . . That, and your passion to frighten me, perhaps justified your brutality. . . . I shall not tell. . . . Don't leave Star ranch."

For an instant Jim felt as if he were upon the verge of a precipice. But her change from revulsion to inscrutable generosity called to all that was good within him.

"Miss Herrick, I'm sorry, but I must leave," he replied, sadly. "I'm only a wandering rider—a gunslinger and—a member of a gang of robbers. And I was mad enough to fall in love with you. . . . Forget it. . . . Go home to England. But if you won't do that—never ride out alone again."

He spurred his horse and galloped down the road, by the barns and across the court, into the lane that led along the brook. Suddenly he espied a compact group of mounted riders coming down the road beyond Hays' cabin. They bestrode bays and blacks, and there was that about them which drew Jim sharply up with a fiery thrill. Smoky's outfit!

Hays stood out in front of the cabin, bareheaded, his legs spread apart as if to anchor himself solidly, his hands at his hips, his sandy hair standing up ruffled like a mane.

"Huh! The boss isn't mad. Oh, no!" soliloquized Jim. "Small wonder. Smoky's outfit has busted loose, or is going to—Well, now, I've a hunch there's luck in this for me."

Jim made for the bridge and, crossing, looked up to see the horses of Smoky's outfit standing, bridles down, and the riders up on the porch. Jim mounted the steps.

Hank Hays sat upon the bench, his shaggy head against the wall, his pale eyes blazing at the row of men leaning on the porch rail.

Smoky was lighting a cigarette, not in the least perturbed, but his eyes had a hard, steely gleam. Brad Lincoln sat back on the rail, eyeing the chief with a sardonic grin. Mac appeared more than usually ghoulish; Bridges and Sparrowhawk Latimer betrayed extreme nervousness.

"Hello, men. What's the mix? Am I in or out?" returned Jim, sharply.

"I reckon you're in," replied Slocum. "Hank is the only one thet's out. . . . Hyar, Jim, ketch this." He drew a dark green bundle from a bulging pocket and tossed it to Jim—a large, heavy roll of greenbacks tied with a buckskin thong.

"Yours on the divvy, Jim," went on Smoky. "Don't count it now. There's a heap of small bills inside an' if you untie them hyar there'll be a mess. But it's a square divvy to the last dollar."

"Thet's a hefty roll, Smoky, for a man to get for nothing," observed Jim, dubiously.

He then noticed that a roll of bills, identical with the one he had just received, lay on the floor.

"You double-crossed me!" burst out Hays, at length.

"Wal, thet's accordin' to how you look at it," retorted Slocum. "Things came up at Grand Junction. We seen some of Heeseman's outfit. They're onto us, or will be pronto. So we jest took a vote, an' every one of us stood for one big drive instead of small drives. An' we made it. Your buyers swore they was short of money an' would pay twelve dollars a head. Talk about robbers! Wal, I took thet an' said I liked it. . . ."

"You disobeyed orders."

"Put it up to Jim, hyar. What do you say, Jim?"

Thus appealed to, Jim addressed Hays point-blank.

"Smoky's right. If you meant to clean out Herrick, that was the way to do it."

"Aw—shore, you'd side with them!"

"I wouldn't do anything of the kind if I thought they were wrong," retorted Jim, angrily. Here was a chance to inflame Hays that he jumped at. If the robber could be drawn into a fight, when his own men were against him, the situation for the Herricks could be made easier for the present.

"THE KEY" STORY OF OLD FLAME ON NEVADA SCREEN

"The Key," which comes to the Nevada Theater Monday and Tuesday, is one of William Powel's best pictures. Co-starred with him are Colin Clive and Edna Best. "The Key" is the story of the troublous times in Ireland during the Sinn Fein revolt. Clive and Powell are British officers stationed in Ireland to check the rioting and spy on the rebels' activities.

Edna Best is the wife of Colin Clive, in the story, and William Powell is an old flame of hers, and therein lies the story. "The Key" offers great dramatic possibilities, which are utilized in full by the excellent cast which numbers , also Halliwell Hobbs, Hobart Cavanaugh, Henry O'Neill and Donald Crisp.

Warner Bros. melodramatic thriller of Uncle Sam's jack-tars, "Here Comes the Navy," will be shown Wednesday and Thursday with a matinee Thursday at 2:15, at the Nevada Theater with James Cagney and Pat O'Brien co-starred and 3,000 sailors taking active part.

The picture is said to carry some of the most breath-taking thrills ever witnessed, in addition to supplying plenty of hilarious comedy and a glowing romance. The action takes place aboard the U. S. S. Arizona; at the dirigible field at Sunnyvale, Calif., with the U. S. S. Macon; at the Naval Training Station at San Diego, Calif., and at the Navy Yards at Bremerton, Washington.

There is thrill after thrill in the picture, two of the most breath-taking being the rescue of a gun crew from a flaming turret and the saving of a man who has been carried aloft clinging to a ground wire of a dirigible by a sailor sliding down the rope with a parachute strapped to his back and dropping with the man to the ground.

Cagney and O'Brien have the steller roles of two virile pack-tars who hate each other with intense fury, the more so because the former loves the latter's sister. Their feud is accompanied by rapid fire action to a smashing climax.

Gloria Stuart furnishes the romantic part while hilarious comedy is enacted by the two principals and by Frank McHugh, Dorothy Tree and Maude Eburne. Others in the cast include Robert Barrat, Williard Robertson, Guinn Williams, Howard Hickman and George Irving.

Pres-to-Logs!

"THE MAGIC FUEL"

FOR FIREPLACE, FURNACE, HEATER AND WHEREVER SOLID FUEL IS USED

Pres-to-logs are the ideal fuel. They are clean; easily handled and stored; they make no soot and little smoke; form almost no ash; make no sparks; burn long and steadily; give great heat; and furnish their own kindling.

Each log measures 4 by 12½ inches and weighs about 8 pounds. Pres-to-logs are made by compressing dry ground wood under the tremendous pressure of 10 tons per square inch. This welds the particles into a solid log more than 3 times as dense as wood.

It's easy to start a fire with Pres-to-logs. Just split them crosswise into wafers for kindling, or into any lengths desired.

Pres-to-logs are economical. Almost nothing is wasted in smoke and ash. Very little draft is needed. They burn slowly and steadily, giving forth an intense heat.

The machine, which makes Pres-to-logs under such terrific pressure, was perfected only after long and costly experiment. It is fully patented. There is nothing like Pres-to-logs.

COME IN AND ASK US ABOUT THIS NEW FUEL.
